Nicole Starosielski is Associate Professor in the Department of Media, Culture, and Communication at New York University. Her research focuses on the relationships between media, infrastructures, and their environments. The Undersea Network (2015), her first book, charts the development of the submarine cable systems that carry almost all transoceanic internet traffic. She has published over twenty essays in edited volumes and journals, including Journal of Visual Culture, Cultural Politics, International Journal of Communication, and PMLA. She is co-editor of Signal Traffic: Critical Studies of Media Infrastructure (2015), Sustainable Media: Critical Approaches to Media and Environment (2016), and the "Elements" book series at Duke University Press. Books in progress include Assembly Codes: The Logistics of Media, an edited collection on the relationship between media and logistics, and a monograph, Media Hot and Cold, on digital media, embodied perception, and temperature.

^b Tinghao Zhou is a Ph.D. student in the Department of Film and Media Studies at the University of California, Santa Barbara, USA.
